

Merck conducts Medical Education tour at CHS

Merck Foundation conducted a Medical Education tour at the College of Health Sciences (CHS) University of Nairobi on 20th September, 2017.

The main aim of the tour was to advance the agenda of Clinical Diabetes and Hypertension Management.

Participants were taught how to interpret the nature, aetiology, diagnosis and cardiovascular complications and treatment of diabetes and hypertension, how to identify the specific chronic complications of diabetes that will contribute to its major health burden, differentiate acute metabolic presentations of diabetes and their inpatient treatment, and identify the current state of detection and prevention of diabetes and hypertension in the local economy and models of future development of services.

Main speakers at the event were Dr. Nicola Napoli from the Department of Endocrinology and Diabetes, Universita Campus Bio-Medico (UCBM), Rome, Italy and Prof. C.F. Otieno, acting Dean, School of Medicine.
